Dear Mr. Thompson

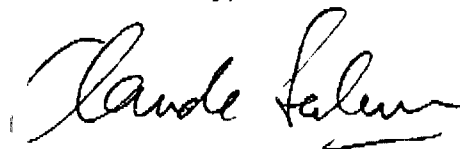

Communications for Development

Thank you for bringing to my attention the new technology invented by Dr. Alfred Wong and which is being developed by Sky Station International.

I am most impressed with the potential that this new technology promises to bring to telecommunications generally and specifically to the developing world's capacity for internal communications. This technological innovation can be expected to have considerable impact on the level and content of communications, both within and between countries in the same sub-region; it will also make it easier (and cheaper) to bring pertinent development information to populations with such needs.

We are very much aware of the importance of the developing world gaining access to global information networks at a reasonable cost. Please keep me informed of developments in this initiative, and feel free to contact me regarding possible applications of the technology to the economic and social investments with which we are associated.

Sincerely,

Claude Salem
